UNITED STATES CAUGHT IN IRAQ CAR-BOMBING

Friday, October 14, 2005 - FreeMarketNews.com

It's happened again - allied troops being caught with bombs. This time it is the Americans captured in the act of setting off a car bomb in Baghdad. Last time, as FMNN reported only weeks ago, two British soldiers, apparently working for British intelligence, were caught near Baghdad similarly equipped.

According to the Mirror-World, "A number of Iraqis apprehended two Americans disguised in Arab dress as they tried to blow up a booby-trapped car in the middle of a residential area in western Baghdad on Tuesday. ... Residents of western Baghdad's al-Ghazaliyah district [said] the people had apprehended the Americans as they left their Caprice car near a residential neighborhood in al-Ghazaliyah on Tuesday afternoon. Local people found they looked suspicious so they detained the men before they could get away. That was when they discovered that they were Americans and called the ... police." Just as in the British incident, the Iraq police arrived at approximately the same time as allied military forces - and the two men were removed from Iraq custody and whisked away before any questioning could take place.

The incidents are said to be fueling both puzzlement and animosity among Iraqis. Yet the motivation behind such activities remains formally unknown since in both cases the soldiers involved have been removed with an efficiency that has quashed any attempts at an interrogation.

FMNN FOLLOW: US. The above report came on the heels of reports regarding a similar incident in which British soldiers were involved - and which ultimately led to an apology to Iraq by the British government. However, Realityzone.com has pointed out that since the source is a Russian news agency, it is possible the above "may be disinformation." Below is a U.S. press release which apparently refers to the incident. The original Mirror story - and reader commentary - may be seen here: <http://iraqwar.mirror-world.ru/article/66519>

An explosive ordnance disposal team was dispatched to the site and safely detonated the car bomb before it could be used by terrorists.
